Module Summary Information

1	Module Title	Dissertation/Live Project/Placement
2	Module Credits	60
3	Module Level	7
4	Module Code	LAW7143

5	Module Overview
The aim of this module is to provide a framework for you to undertake a substantial piece of disciplinary-relevant research the output of which may be either a placement, integrated project or dissertation. This is founded upon Birmingham City University's teaching and learning philosophy which integrates theory into practice. The module allows you to conduct a study integrating the principles, tools and methods from your programme in particular the study of research paradigms and development of achievable methodologies in the Advanced Legal Research Methods module. The format for the study whether it be a placement, live project or dissertation will vary depending on which one you choose, however it must relate to the specific pathway that you are studying, either the LLM in International Business Law, International Human Rights or International Law Dissertation Conducting a dissertation allows you to engage in the rigorous study of a clearly defined legal topic or issue. You will be required to write academically to a level of critical scholarship illustrating critical selection, categorisation and reflection. Studying a dissertation allows you to develop a higher level of knowledge and critical awareness through self-directed learning and autonomous enquiry. You will assess and reconcile complex legal issues and present them in an academic and authoritative format. Live Project This has to adhere to the framework of ethical approval applied within the School of Law and will involve working alongside researchers within the School of Law. Conducting a project requires you to possess a high degree of professionalism, the ability to manage the supervisory relationship and be able to collaborate with other stakeholders. Completion of the project allows you to specialise in a chosen field or area related to your legal study that shows critical knowledge and the application of research but also the demonstration of an outcome (result of the project). Placement This option allows you to develop practical and academic skills by undertaking a placement or internship of work in a relevant field to produce a piece of enhanced work demonstrating necessary reflection. You will have the opportunity to resolve complex problems involving business or human rights law in a logical and professional manner as well as experience the relationship between the substantive and practical aspects of international business law or international human rights. Through the application of learned skills, such as research, project planning and demonstration of professionalism you will be able to resolve practical problems and where possible, to devise remedial strategies. You will also develop confidence through direct contact with professionals in the field of your study. Ultimately you will be required to produce a piece of extended critical and reflective writing upon your placement experience.

Learning and Teaching

Delivery of the module will vary depending on the choice of project you make. You will be assigned to an academic who will have oversight of your project and there will be a requirement for you to undertake significant preparation outside of the face-to-face contact with your tutor. Whilst you will already successfully completed training in Advanced Legal Research Methods your tutor will discuss with you the methods you have chosen for your study in addition to guiding you on strategy implementation for your project.

Dissertation

You will have individual meetings with your allocated supervisor purposely designed for you to discuss your progress, receive oral or written feedback on your research and performance in satisfying your research objective. The first of these will discuss the overall schedule of work for the dissertation. You will be required to do significant research outside of these meetings as well as undertake any preparatory work requested by your supervisor.

Live Project

Following negotiation of your topic for the live project which includes specific topics such as working with other people and demonstrating professionalism (not limited to these), you will be required to liaise with your project coordinator at three specific stages: start, middle and end.

Placement

You will have an initial meeting with your allocated placement supervisor who will then discuss with you the schedule of the upcoming placement. You will have three further meetings with your supervisor as the placement progresses and a post-placement meeting at the end. For the duration of the placement you are encouraged to keep regular contact with your supervisor through the VLE/Skype or email.
